Luxury Layover | Zoé Ouvrier

Inspired by nature, French artist Zoé Ouvrier uses hand-engraving techniques to carve edgy designs of organic forests into screens, wooden panels and paintings to garnish your home with. FOUR finds out about this up-and-coming designer's her perfect weekend...

I'd wake up in...

Cabarete in the Dominican Republic.

I would stay at...

A ground floor apartment nestled between trees and complete with an ocean view.

Breakfast would be...

Freshly cut mango and Chicory café.

I would wear...

Day: Eres swimsuit and kite surfing outfit with special UV Lycra

Evening: printed translucent tunic with shorts or yoga pants.

And take these travel essentials:

Essential oils, natural soap and mosquito repellent. The real essential, however, would be having my children and my significant lover around me.

I'd listen to:

Flamenco, techno and classical music...and Pink Floyd.

And visit...

The ocean and kite boarding centre every day.

Have lunch at...

Fresh Fresh.

LIFESTYLE

And dinner at...

The Beach Club Sea Horse luxury resort.

I would make time to buy...

Amber stones.

And hang out with...

Friends.

I would relax at...

Moli Cabarete Yoga.

And drink...

A shrubbery smoothie at Eze Bar.

Why Cabarete?

Life is intense and very demanding so when on vacation I have the chance to reconnect with my inner being and Cabarete is the perfect place to do just that...
